

ABSTRACT

A flotation device for water aerobics comprising a single piece of foam shaped to form a main central member having positive buoyancy and a pair of float arms having positive buoyancy.

Each float arm terminates in a handle, and the foam arms of the device attached to the main

5 central member may bend flexibly according to the motion of a user's arms.